2007 LEGISLATIVE WRAP-UP

AFTER DAY ONE WAS DONE

Few had higher expectations than environmental groups when Governor Eliot Spitzer arrived in Albany last January. The Governor's actions took center stage for most of the 2007 legislative session. His first budget and executive appointments were big winners for the environment.

However, several environmental accomplishments were driven by the New York State Legislature this year.

Among these successes was passage of the Hudson Valley Community Preservation Act and the Environmental Protection Fund Enhancement Act, both "3-tree" priority Super Bills (evaluated to have the most benefit for New York's environment, see page 6). This year also saw 12 measures passed by both houses and sent to the Governor's desk.

The Hudson Valley Community Preservation Act was a compromise bill that Senator Vincent Leibell (R-Brewster) drafted and worked with Assemblyman Adam Bradley (D-White Plains) to pass. The legislation is a regional version of the statewide Community Preservation Act, and will provide new funding tools to protect natural areas, farmland, and historic buildings.

While the Hudson Valley law only applies to Westchester and Putnam counties, it was designed so that counties can be easily added in the future.

The Environmental Protection Fund Enhancement Act establishes by law that New York will increase its Environmental Protection Fund to nearly $300 million by 2009.

Governor Spitzer also named a veritable all-star team to take the helm of our environmental agencies.

Former EPL/Environmental Advocates executive director Judith Enck was named the new administration's Deputy Secretary for the Environment.

Carol Ash, a long-time leader in the environmental community, was tapped to head the Office of Parks, Recreation, and Historic Preservation. And Assemblyman Pete Grannis took over at the Department of Environmental Conservation after a contentious confirmation hearing.

The Governor also added 166 desperately needed staff to the state's environmental agencies.

The question is, how will the 2007 legislative session affect next year's elections?

The Senate has become the subject of electoral speculation of late, as the Republican majority has slimmed in recent years. If Senate Democrats were to take two more seats, they would win the majority for the first time in more than 60 years.

As the environment is an issue that often draws a distinction between the two parties, we anticipate that New York's Republicans and Democrats will make our natural heritage a priority in 2008.

HOW TO REVIEW THE SCORES

Lawmakers' scores are calculated as follows:

Total points earned (including bonus points) / Total points possible for each individual

Please note, because bonus points were awarded this year, several lawmakers received scores in excess of 100. See page 17 for more information.

LEGISLATOR OF THE YEAR

SWEENEY
(D-Lindenhurst)

Assemblyman Robert Sweeney was named the Assembly Environmental Conservation (EnCon) Committee Chair three months into the 2007 legislative session. Environmental groups worried that it might be difficult for him to achieve a great deal, given the time that had passed. We needn't have worried; he exceeded our highest expectations.

The Assemblyman wasted no time settling in as chairman and moving on measures that had been stalled while the committee awaited a new leader. He acted as the primary sponsor for 15 of the bills supported by environmental groups this year, including all of the priority Super Bills. Highlights of his efforts also include support for increasing New York's investment in our natural heritage by passing the Environmental Protection Fund Enhancement Act and the introduction of much-needed legislation to mitigate New York's contribution to climate change.

While his work with the EnCon Committee has just begun, EPL/Environmental Advocates anticipates only bigger and greener things from the Assemblyman in the future. However, it's never too early to celebrate his efforts. That's why we selected Assemblyman Sweeney as our 2007 Legislator of the Year.

"I thank EPL/Environmental Advocates for choosing me as Legislator of the Year. We are fortunate to have numerous committed environmentalists who work together with many of my Assembly colleagues to advance smart policies," said Sweeney. "Protecting our natural resources, making sure our families' lives are not compromised by environmental hazards, and ensuring that future generations will be able to enjoy the vast wonders of New York are all vitally important to me."

OIL SLICK AWARD

New Yorkers for Real Recycling Reform

This year's oil slick award goes to a group that poured special interest money into a campaign to kill one of the environmental community's priority Super Bills—the Bigger Better Bottle Bill. This measure would expand New York's bottle deposit law to include non-carbonated beverages such as bottled water and match the needs of today's consumers. It would also earmark unclaimed deposits for the environment.

While it's no surprise that the bottling industry opposes legislation that would reclaim millions of dollars of the public's unclaimed bottle deposits, what is surprising is the group's name, "New Yorkers for Real Recycling Reform."

Such a name suggests civic-minded recyclers or well-meaning citizens. In truth, the Real Recyclers' agenda is set by big business interests. The coalition behind the group includes the Food Industry Alliance, Coca-Cola, Pepsi, Anheuser-Busch, the Beer Wholesalers Association, Snapple/Cadbury Schweppes, and the New York Association of Convenience Stores—not exactly a list of recyclers or reformers.

Expanding New York's bottle deposit law would result in major environmental and fiscal benefits while reducing the volume of plastic bottles overtaking our landfills and littering parks and roadsides. It's also worth noting that in 2005 alone an estimated 53.5 million barrels of crude oil were consumed nationwide to replace the 144 billion containers that were wasted and not recycled.

Thanks in large part to the efforts of this group, the Bigger Better Bottle Bill won't be in place to reduce New York's contribution to this number until next year at the earliest.

WHAT YOU CAN DO NOW THAT YOU KNOW THE SCORE

1. Hold our legislators accountable if they voted to weaken New York's environmental safeguards. Send lawmakers a note expressing your disapproval of their performance in Albany. If your legislators are working to protect New York's natural heritage, write to thank them for doing so.

2. Vote at the local, state and federal level. Your vote is critical when it comes to whether or not New York State has a legislature that protects the air we breathe, the water we drink, and the health of our families.

3. Become a Member of EPL/

Environmental Advocates. Join us and lend your voice to New York's first environmental advocacy group in the State Capital. Look on the next page for information on how you can act to protect New York's water, air and land.

How to contact your lawmakers:

New York State lawmakers are in regular session every year in January through June. While they are scheduled to meet for six months, in recent years budget problems have led to lengthier sessions and additional special sessions. Write your legislators: New York State Assembly, Albany, NY 12248, or New York State Senate, Albany, NY 12247. Call the Assembly at (518) 455-4100 and the Senate at (518) 455-2800.

Find out who represents you:

Visit www.assembly.state.ny.us or www.senate.state.ny.us or call the New York State Senate at (518) 455-2800 or the New York State Assembly at (518) 455-4100.
